ADVERTISEMENT.

IT was not until yesterday that I had an opportunity of seeing a publication in the Alexandria and Washington papers, of the 23d inst.——Signed)

JOHN F. BOWIE, Junr.

I must therefore, beg leave to reply to that publication in as short and concise a manner as possible; this I consider a duty I owe to the deceased, not only as a friend, but as a Brother. I cannot help expressing my surprize at seeing this publication, as I certainly expected that nothing of the kind was necessary at this period; when we reflect that Mr. Bowie could not be answered by Mr. E. M. Lyles, and as it appears from the face of his publication his wish to justify his conduct, it becomes necessary to present to the world, some items in justification of my Brother's conduct. It appears from Mr. Bowie's statement, that on the 10th day of June, in the morning, he was in company at Bowling's Tavern, with Messrs. E. M. Lyles, F. Wise, and some others, that in the course of conversation Mr. L. did speak of ladies of his acquaintance in terms highly improper—that he Mr. Bowie immediately expressed his disapprobation, on which Mr. Lyles explained and apologised, and Mr. Bowie was satisfied. I cannot omit remarking that although Mr. Bowie did acknowledge he was satisfied, he communicated this circumstance to one or more of those Ladies, which immediately felt injured, and showed an immediate resentment to some of Mr. Lyles's near relations, who lived in the neighborhood. This coolness on the part of those Ladies to Mr. Lyles's relations, was not to be accounted for by them, and of course they inquired the cause, and was informed that Mr. Bowie had informed one or more of them, that Mr. L. did speak disrespectful of them. This circumstance was communicated to Mr. L. on the 4th of July at Piscataway, in the evening, when Mr. L. felt injured, and his was the cause of Mr. Lyles inviting Mr. Bowie up stairs; it certainly must appear obvious to the impartial reader, that if Mr. Lyles had said any thing disrespectful of those ladies, and afterwards apologised for it, and Mr. Bowie was satisfied, that Mr. Bowie ought to have been silent on that subject afterwards, and not to have given any information to that effect to those Ladies---but I think from the whole train of information which I have collected, together with all the certificates, that the world will believe with me, that Mr. Lyles did not say any thing disrespectful of those Ladies. I must therefore beg the particular attention of the impartial reader, to the certificates of Mr. Bowling, No. 1. Major Taney, No. 2. Doctor Hill, No. 3. Mr. Wise, No. 4. and myself, No. 5.

No. 1.

Mr. Bowling's certificate. That on going into the room when Mr. Lyles, Mr. Wise and Mr. Bowie was, he heard Mr. Bowie say, "gentlemen, take notice the Ladies you speak of are of my acquaintance, and I shall hold you accountable to me, for what you say of them," or to that effect.

I ask, is it possible, for a moment, to suppose that any part of this certificate goes to prove, that Mr. Lyles either individually, or conjointly, said any thing disrespectful of those Ladies? I answer no; because the certificate has nothing to do with the word "disrespect," as coming from Mr. Lyles, or any thing else that was improper, and further Mr. Bowie applied his charge to Mr. Lyles, when Mr. Bowling says, he did speak to gentlemen, which would infer that others were implicated in Mr. Bowie's charge, besides Mr. Lyles.

No. 2.

Major Taney's certificate, is in these words. That what he Mr. Lyles, had said about the Ladies should be out of the question, and required no apology, as it could not for a moment be supposed, that he meant to convey any improper meaning by such expressions.

I ask the reader to pause, "and see if any word or words which is contained in this certificate, goes to establish that Mr. Lyles, did speak disrespectful of those Ladies," it is impossible to infer such an idea; (although it is not denied but Mr. Lyles might have been conversing about the Ladies,) and when we take into view the certificates of Doctor Hill, Mr. Wise, and myself, it will most clearly appear that nothing could have been said by Mr. Lyles, disrespectful of them.

With respect to the caning business, Dr. Hill's certificate is sufficiently explanatory; but certainly it cannot be denied but Mr. Bowie was premature in his publication, of the 13th July, for as Mr. Lyles was the challenged person, he certainly had the right to name his own time, either for his meeting or agreeing in his answer (provided it was a reasonable one) and until that time had elapsed, Mr. Bowie had no right to publish Mr. Lyles: Mr. Bowie's challenge was given the 12th of July, and Mr. Lyles required 'till the 17th to give his answer, and Mr. Bowie published him the 13th, which was four days previous to the time that Mr. Lyles required to give in his answer. I shall now conclude with a belief that the impartial public will form their opinions accordingly.

GEORGE N. LYLES.

Alexandria, August 31, 1805.

No. 3.

Mr. Hawkins was asked in my presence, if Mr. Lyles had made use of the assertions of which he was accused? Mr. H. answered no—and at the same time observed, that the lady was a connection of his, and consequently he thought it his duty if Mr. Lyles had said so, to take notice of it. I also heard Mr. Hawkins say that Lyles had spoken in the highest terms of the lady.

WILLIAM HILL.

No. 4.

Being called upon by Mr. G. N. Lyles, to know if I recollected hearing Mr. E. M. Lyles make use of language derogatory to the character of certain ladies, on the 10th June, at Bowling's tavern Piscataway. I will briefly state, that in my presence Mr. Lyles made use of no such language, neither do I recollect Mr. Bowie addressing himself to Mr. Lyles and myself, as stated in Mr. Bowling's certificate in the Washington Federalist of the 27th August.

Given under my hand this 30th day of August, 1805.

FRANCIS WISE.

No. 5.

On the 6th of August, the day before Mr. E. M. Lyles's death, he came into my room, I asked him if he did or did not say any thing disrespectful of these ladies—he answered, I call my God to witness, I never did.

Given under my hand this 31st day of August, 1805.

GEORGE N. LYLES.

From London Papers, June 10 to 13.

June 11.

Government has received advice, we understand, of the capture of the Hannibal, which was severely handled in her action with the Lively, struck to a frigate of 44 guns, the Illustrious being at the same time in sight. The Hannibal was formerly a British 74, and was taken about five years since in Algeziras Bay, where she grounded within the reach of the Spanish batteries.

Hardly any thing is talked of but lord Nelsons pursuit of the combined fleet; and as is generally the case, when intelligence does not keep pace with the unreasonable impatience of the public, numbers of unfounded reports are circulated almost hourly. Letters were yesterday pretended to have been received from Holland, stating that an action had taken place between lord Nelson and the combined fleets. To state all the forms in which this rumor has been circulated would be impossible, nor is it necessary, as we can lay before our readers the original fabrication itself, which first appeared on the 21st ult. in the Dutch Gazette, entitled Stants und Handlungs Zuschaner an Gestede der Sider see, and was afterwards copied into the Hamburgh Correspondent of the 22d. The following is the article alluded to:-

"If we can credit a report spread at the time this paper was going to press, there has been a most bloody battle in the neighborhood of the Canary Islands, between the French, Spanish and English fleets, under the command of Admirals Gravina and Nelson, in which both commanders fell, and the British captured nine sail of the line and four frigates. What truth there may be in this important intelligence time alone can determine."

We need hardly add, that the date proves this pretended intelligence to be altogether unfounded.

Gibraltar, June 6. Three American gun-boats and one mortar boat arrived to day from the United States on their way to Tripoli, which they are going to attack again.

The American gun boats are universally reckoned to be the most complete vessels of the kind ever seen in this Bay, whilst the few English gun boats here are exactly the reverse, and are so inferior in every respect to those of the Spaniards in their construction, and in rowing or sailing, that the enemy laugh at and despise them.

June 8. The garrison is perfectly healthy, though a number of families have already left it, from the apprehension of the fever breaking out again.

Paris, June 30. It is asserted that Prince Louis will have the command of a considerable body of reserve; his head quarters to be at St. Amand. The army on the coast is at present sub-divided into three corps, denominated after their stations. The astronomer Lalande has published in our journals some observations on the preparations made on our coast, in which he states the number of vessels at Boulogne at upwards of two thousand, and that of the army at one hundred and fifty or two hundred thousand men.

Florence, June 14. Tuscany, as well as Lucca, are to be united with the new kingdom of Italy. Bonaparte intends to make many other changes in Italy. To facilitate the changes, the republic of Lucca has applied to Bonaparte for a new constitution, and requested the honor of being governed by a member of his family. Many more political changes are speedily expected to take place in other parts of Italy. Bonaparte has undertaken to pay all the pensions due to the officers and household of the late duke of Parma, amounting to about 100,000 livres per month. The pay of the French garrison at Leghorn has been diminished by 150,000 livers per month. Bonaparte promises that the subsidy for the maintenance of these troops shall be discontinued, as soon as England acknowledges the kingdom of Etruria. Between the Eutrurian and French governments an exchange of territory is about to take place. Eutruria is to cede to France the district of Orbitello, and a part of the valley of Cecina, bordering on the Duchy of Urbina, receiving in exchange the republic of Lucca, with the Dutchies of Massa and Carrara.

Leyden, July 12.---Among the foreign news the following is deserving of notice:

"At Constantanople, the hopes of the English to conclude a tripple alliance between Great Britain, Russia and the Porte, are disappointed, the Russian ambassador having declared to the Turkish secretary of state, as we are informed, that the Russian monarch was disposed to co-operate for peace; but not to enter into an offensive and defensive alliance.

"The Russian chamberlain and minister of justice, Count Novositzof, who is known to be charged with a negociation, is not only already arrived at Berlin, and that sooner than was expected, but also the British envoy at Berlin, M. Jackson who had been three weeks at Dresden, is returned to Berlin in haste, and has already had a conference with the Russian negociator.

June 12.

We have received the Paris Journals, to the 4th instant, and Dutch papers to the 9th. By the former we find that the preparations for the invasion of this country are continued with increased activity, troops to the amount of between fifteen & twenty thousand are now in motion along the coast; and the flotilla at Boulogne consists of not less than 2000 vessels. Bonaparte having received the homage of his Italian slaves, is on his return to France; he comes by the Rhine and is shortly expected shortly on the coast, where he is to be met by the minister of war. In Holland too, the preparations appear to be very active. General Marmont is now at the Helder, inspecting the military, and admiral Winter, is appointed commander in chief of the fleet, to be employed in the expedition. On the whole we deem it highly probable that the attempt at invasion will not be much longer delayed;—but come the enemy when they may, they will find us prepard to meet them determined to stand or fall with the liberties and independence of our country. According to letters from Frankfort, the French troops continue to March from Hanover, to the interior of France; and an unusual degree of activity is observable in every direction.

A letter from Stockholm dated the 4th inst. states, that several of the first personages in Sweden have been dismissed from the offices of state which they held, in consequence of the representations they had made to the king on the subject of his present military measures, in opposition to France, Prussia, and Austria.

It is added, that, among others, the baron Lagerbelke, ministsr for foreign affairs, M. De Liebat, of the court and of state, have received orders to quit the kingdom. This statement, however, will probably prove an exaggeration of the fact. It is also stated, that the efforts of the English to form a tripple alliance between Great-Britain, Russia, and Turkey, have failed; M. D'Italinsky, the Russian minister at Constantinople, having received [illegible] to suspend the negociations upon that subject. A letter from Frankfort of the 23d June contains the following article: "They write from Augsburgh, that several Russian ministers of distinguished rank continually pass through that city on their way to France; a circumstance which is considered as a prelude to the re-establishment of a good understanding between Russia and France."

Mr. Trotter has taken a stroll [illegible] near Highgate. He was probably [illegible] there, as he did not take [illegible] until he had lost the large [illegible].

A new Tiara has been [illegible], and more in Paris, which is intended as they are confined Bonaparte to the Pope. [illegible] upon the be. of Oriental rubles, saphires, [illegible] circumstances enable liants, and pearls; the most c[illegible] ly to enshrine a very large emerald, weighing [illegible] ary. placed under the cross, which, [illegible] ages constituted part of the [illegible] the Vatican, and is now restored to its original destination.

The report of the death of Tallien is contradicted in the Paris papers.

The report is renewed that the resident of the pope will soon be removed to Avignon.

According to one of our journals, it is considered as certain at Paris that there publican Kalender will be entirely laid aside in September next. Several public officers even in their official documents, already make use of the old. The principal difficulty is said to be, that the financial accounts throughout the empire, commence from the 22d of September; but the minister of finances, it is said, has a plan that will obviate this.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

COMMUNICATION.

A word to Duelists.—The practice of deciding contests by single combat, has of late years prevailed to an alarming degree, drenching the land in blood, and provoking the Divine judgments.

Writings eminent for learning and wit have treated the practice with the ridicule it deserves, and none with more effect than the writings of Dean Swift, those who are ambitious of acquiring by practice the title of honorable gentlemen, are entreated to peruse his Observations on Polite Conversation.

Dissuasives of a more serious kind against this practice, arise from its being at variance with the law of God.

It is enjoined upon mankind, "thou shalt not kill," this command according to our Saviour's interpretation thereof, forbids the malicious thought, or expression. The crime is then in embryo, in that state its extirpation is demanded. Offences will come, but revenge not yourselves—Overcome evil with good—Bless them that curse you—When Christ was reviled, he reviled not again—When he suffered he threatened not. This is real greatness of mind, it bespeaks a noble, bold, independent spirit.

But the spirit by which the Duelist is actuated is degraded, cowardly and dependent—He has not courage to oppose a prevailing opinion, even when erroneous, and wicked. A great military character, was too intrepid, to be held in such mean fetters ---"You know I am not afraid to fight," was his answer to a challenge, "but I am afraid to offend GOD."

An offence often of the most trivial nature, must be expiated by meeting the antagonist in the field. If another injures me, it is a poor reparation to put it his power to murder my person, as he has already murdered my name: Or, if I have given the offence, must nothing satisfy me but to add the guilt of blood to the injuries already offered. Is this in either case consistent with the suppression of passion; the forgiveness of injury; or the exercise of meekness, so often inculcated by our Lord, and enforced by his own example. But why speak to such, of Christ; or of his example? They know him not; they honor him not: Their revenge must be gratified, and their blasted reputation blazened abroad, in defiance of God's law; in defiance of Christ's doctrine; in defiance of the wrath which guards that law, and this doctrine; in defiance of hell, kindled to punish those who take away their own lives, or the lives of others.

The pretended honor often mentioned as rendering this practice necessary, is a gilding over indelible disgrace. Their boasted vaporing breeds in considerate minds pity and contempt. If it be honor to writhe in pain—if it be honor to die accursed—if it be honor to be associated afterwards with murderers——THIS HONOR O[illegible] Duelist, thou hast purchased! To [illegible]

...WS FROM TRIPOLI.

...ATE o'c... ...In the ... ...ce from Salem (Mas.) dated August 28, ...ter one o'clock.

"With heartfelt joy I announce to you ...hy fortunate and honorable TERMINA... ...TION OF THE WAR WITH TRI... ...POLI. A vessel (the Belle-Isle, captain ...Leach) is now entering our port from the ...Mediterranean, and brings the important ...news that Gen. Eaton gained a great vic... ...tory, on the 10th June, over the Bashaw's ...army, slaughtering a large part of his for... ...ces; he is wounded but it is hoped not ...badly. He dictated the terms of peace on ...the spot. Our prisoners are all to be re... ...leased WITHOUT RANSOM, of course no tri... ...bute in future."

"I know not whether the old bashaw ...has agreed to abdicate his station. As it is ...said there are dispatches on board for go... ...vernment, and the mail is going, I have on... ...ly time to offer my sincere congratulations ...on this event,"

In a poscript it is added:

"I did not hear the name of the place where the battle was fought, but it is said to be 100 leagues east of Tripoli."

By the mail of last evening we received the following statements.

From the Salem Register of August 29.

Yesterday the brig Belle-Isle, capt Leach, arrived here in 66 days from Naples. About eight days before he sailed, news arrived there, that Gen. Eaton, at the head of the small American force which had been detached from our Mediterranean squadron, and the troops collected by the rival brother of the Bashaw of Tripoli, had an engagement with the Tripolines at Derne; on which side the victory declared we do not learn; but it was said that general Eaton's army suffered most severely, and that every American was killed, except Mr. Eaton, who was wounded in the shoulder! The effect of the battle, however, was an immediate negociation for peace, to assist at which, Col. Lear went to Tripoli; and two days before captain L. sailed, dispatches were received from Col. Lear at Naples, bringing the important and glorious intelligence that a PEACE, highly honorable to the United States, had been concluded, and of course the Americans, who had been so long suffering in captivity, released. Capt. Leach we understand, brings dispatches for our government, so that we may expect shortly to have the official details of the battle the negociation and the terms of peace.

The American squadron had not left Malta when this affair took place; and there was no intelligence at Naples of the gun-boats from the United States having joined them. Commodore Barron, after he found the negociation was in a promising train, sailed for the United States on account of his ill state of health.

From the Boston Gazette of Aug. 29.

We understand by several gentlemen, who left Salem yesterday afternoon, that the brig Bellisle, captain Leach, had arrived at that place from Naples, bringing the important and highly gratifying intelligence of the capture of the city of Tripoli, by the forces under the ex-bashaw (directed, we presume, by the intrepid spirit of our countryman gen. Eaton) and that the American prisoners had been immediately released.

Several parcels of dispatches, directed to the president, and to the heads of departments (received by this vessel) were lodged in the post office last evening. They were noted to be of high importance, and ordered to be forwarded to the seat of government, without delay.

The following letters were received by the above arrival, and add some important particulars to the agreeable intelligence above stated:

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman at Naples, dated June 15, 1805.

"Letters from Sicily mention, that advices had been received from our commodore at Syracuse, informing of the release of the American prisoners, and a peace with Tripoli. This event is said to be altogether owing to the spirited conduct of gen. Eaton. No particulars are mentioned; but it is supposed on the terms offered by America, as Eaton had previously taken Derne and Baquara."

Extract of a letter from Frederick Degen, Esq. to a gentleman in this town.

"Dated Naples, June 22, 1805.

"Commodore Barron has resigned the command of the American Squadron to captain Rodgers. He (commodore Rodgers,) wrote me on the 1st June, that Peace with the Bashaw of Tripoli was finally concluded; and that the terms were most advantageous and honorable to the United States. It appears, that Mr. Eaton's undertaking has been attended with success. Mr. Dyson wrote me from Syracuse, that previous to the conclusion of peace, General Eaton defeated the Bashaw's troops at Derna, and took possession of that town and castle, but received himself, during the action, a musket shot through the arm."

The intelligence contained in the above letters, is derived through an official source, and announces the important fact that

PEACE IS MADE WITH TRIPOLI AND OUR COUNTRYMEN ARE FREE!

POLITICAL ESSAYS

On the essential and distinctive qualities of Democracies and Republics, with reference to the Constitution of the United States.

FROM THE BALTIMORE REPUBLICAN, OR ANTI-DEMOCRAT.

ESSAY VIII.

"The American Governments are, in every respect, "Complete and perfect Democracies."
AURORA, June 14, 1803.

The writer of these essays, as appears by the preceding number, thought he had done all that his subject required; and seemed to conclude that, by shewing what democracy consisted in, he had evinced, with sufficient clearness, that such a denomination could not, with any semblance of propriety, be applied to the constitution of the United States. However palpable this inference it did not suit the party styling itself democratic, to allow it to be received by the people, without some efforts to deprive it of its efficacy. In conformity with the views of this party, the Editor of the Aurora, its organ, was employed to overthrow the principles laid down in the Anti-Democrat, and to establish their converse, that the American general, and state governments are, in every sense of the word, Democracies, and that a republic and a democracy are, in every acceptation, synonymous or controvertible terms. This he endeavored to do in sixteen long numbers signed (in the Aurora) "The Editor," as we have already observed in our introduction to these essays. We cannot pretend to publish this long labored tissue; which consists of some argument, much declamation, and still more of unqualified abuse and detraction, not merely of his supposed opponent, (the Editor of the Anti-Democrat) but of some of the most exalted men in our country. Shortly after he had concluded, the writer of the "Mirror," resumed his arguments; with the following prefatory remarks.

(Ed. Ledger.)

There is a state of the public mind, which disposes it for the reception of political delusions. In a crisis of this nature, when the disease is at its height, the most ancient institutions are found to oppose but a feeble barrier to the prevailing rage for innovation. Then, maxims long exploded, and systems of government that have bro't ruin upon whole nations, dazzle the weak intellect, and become the idols of the moment. "The dog-star rages." Every fool is a politician. Age, experience, and wisdom, are pushed off the stage. Change succeeds to change, in constitutions and institutions; while "a salutary permanency in the magistracy, and stability in the laws" disappear, amidst the captivating music of universal suffrage, and the clamorous shouts of liberty; leaving in their room a complex despotism, or military tyranny.

This brief and melancholy tale of the beginning and end of democracy, history has often told: and, as if intended to warn the Western Empire from treading in the steps which have led to the extinction of so many ancient republics; an European nation has recently furnished another example of the effects of excessive liberty.

To apprize my fellow-citizens of the danger of too much liberty has been amongst my earliest, though humble efforts. I have always professed myself an admirer of the nicely balanced Roman Republic, down to the Gracchi; a detester of that infuriate liberty by which it was destroyed. An admirer of the commonwealth of Athens, as it came out of the hands of Solon, and for a short season after; a detester of its government under the alteration made in it by a succession of ambitious demagogues.

With a mind filled with these events, & mourning the fate of a deluded man, I have thought it my duty to warn my fellow-citizens of the dangers which beset them.

Thank heaven the seed of democracy though sown in this country is yet in the blade. If it be permitted to ripen, tho' the people must help to gather in the harvest, the demagogues alone will fatten on the crop.

Look abroad and around! How are some of them employed? Busy in obtaining changes in our constitutions and institutions, calculated to secure to themselves or friends good and lucrative offices! No. No. Calculated to secure the liberties of the people!!!

May a merciful and kind providence open the eyes of the people before it be tow late, before every thing valuable in our laws and constitutions be destroyed by the fiend democracy,

The hypothesis in the motto, "that the American governments are complete and perfect democracies," having attracted attention, and the term democrat being assumed by some citizens, the pernicious tendency and object of its promulgation, gave rise to two essays published in the Anti-Democrat of the 1st and 15th of July last under the signature of The Mirror; in which this new doctrine was examined and our governments shewn to be republics ---To these two essays a reply has appeared in the Aurora, in sixteen numbers, entitled "A vindication of the democratic constitutions of the United States," signed "The Editor" (28)

It is proposed to renew the subject in a few papers, under the following general heads.

1. To examine the authorities relied upon by the editor to prove his hypothesis, that, "the American governments are in every respect complete and perfect de mocracies."

2. To ascertain what is meant by the supreme or sovereign power of the state, and where it resides.

3. To shew that the best informed among the ancients, who have written respecting the different kinds of government distinguish between a democracy and a republic.--And

4. To shew that the highest ancient authorities, and ancient examples, confirm the position, "that republics have a tendency to degenerate into democracies."

(28) Aurora, Aug. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 29, 30, 31. Sept. 7, 8.---1803.

FOR SALE.

Five hundred acres of LAND, in the County of Alexandria, and five and a half miles from Alexandria and two from Georgetown, one moiety in Wood and part of that heavily timbered. It abounds in excellent water, and hath an extensive view of the neighborhood—from its proximity to the City, Georgetown and Alexandria, with the additional convenience of an abundance of wood, few farms within the District claim a pre-eminence. Upon the First Monday in October, I shall attend on the premises for the purpose of disposing of it, if not sold previous to that time. Should it be more accommodating to those (who wish a country residence during the sickly months,) I will divide it into ten and twenty acre LOTS. Any person wishing to view the Land, by an application to WILLIAM SNELLUM, who lives on it may be gratified.—My remoteness and the frequent depredations on the Wood and Timber, are the principal inducements to sell it, not more than one-fifth of the purchase money will be required, and a credit from two to three years will be given for the residue, security by a mortgage, and a forfeiture of the advanced monies, with interest on the sum unpaid, if not punctually and fully discharged.

He hopes that his house will be a convenient stand for travellers, being a moderate stage from Alexandria or Dumfries; and from the great labor and expense that has been bestowed by Mr. Ellicott, in making a new road leading by this place of unequalled firmness and excellence, he has no doubt but that the rout by Occoquan, needs only to be known to entitle it to a decided preference to that by Colchester, and more particularly it will accommodate those travelling from Fauquier, Culpepper, and Orange to Alexandria and the Federal City. A view of the different works at Occoquan, will always be amusing to the stranger who has an hour to spare.
